The Mississippi State University Writing Center dedicates itself to helping all MSU students develop as writers and critical thinkers. Thus, the mission of Mississippi State's Writing Center is simple: our goal is to support the writing that is happening on campus. We do that by being available online and in person to writers who want to think about, talk about, and work on their writing and the ideas that they want that writing to communicate.

A Writing Center representative can visit your class and present an introduction to our Center, who we are, and how we can work with your students in one-on-one consultations, or we can work with you to create a presentation that will support the writing that your students are doing in the class.

Your students for any class at any level can make a 30-minute or 60-minute appointment with a consultant either online or face-to-face to discuss the assignment they are writing. Our consultants can help them brainstorm, outline, organize ideas, find sources, cite sources, navigate style manuals, and develop their writing skills.

In addition to online consultations, we have a webpage where students can access our scheduling website and find helpful resources as they work on their writing assignments. We also have a Canvas module that you can add to your Canvas page to provide access to the same information and links.

If you would like to collaborate with the Writing Center in any way, please email writingcenter@msstate.edu or call 662-325-1045. We can set up a meeting to discuss an assignment, a presentation, materials that will help our consultants work with your students, and more.
